PEKING.

16th August. Our sinclogues here admire the promptitude with which the Shen-pao publishes Peking Guzetles; and so I don't need to give you a trans. lation of the Decree by which Ch'nng How is now fully pardoned. Here, we have another farce of Chinese politics. When Ch'nng How's capital panishment was temporarily redeemed, the Tsungli Yamên spoke in its introductory dispatch referring to it, of its being a permanent reprieve, and that Decree, of which you gave a corre f verbal translation speaks in the most friendly nay humiliating, terms of Russia, such as Turkey would now hesitate to apply to Russia; but just for that reason this Imperial Decreenever appeared in the Pekiny Gazette, whilst the present one did appear. Afterexchanges of telegraphic dispatches and various processinations, Marquis Tseng is obliged by repeated argent demands to proceed to St. Petersburg, as I said before the prudent Marquis did not succeed in getting his predeces-Bor as colleague, viz :-- a second Chinese negotistor, but Russia's firm attitude, not to listen to by trees proposals from Chins, and Marquis Tseng's pronounced reluctance to assume the great resposibility, led to the issue of the last Imperial Decree. Unless China should first have declared war upon Russia, this Decree was an indispensable consequence of the above. Therefore it was not in deference to the wishes of Foreign Ministers that Ch'ung How was released, but owing to Marquis Tseng's reluctance, and Russia's refusal, to treat until he was pardoned. repeat my former assertion that the Emperor. signed the Treaty himself, because he was dealing with an ambassador, who (as it is now proved) got the telegraphic consent of his govern. ment to his stipulations of the treaty of Kuldja whilst he was still in St. Petersburg, and it was China who urged that the treaty should be signed by the Emperor of Russia, for fear of Russia going back on the stipulations, and this trealy is called the Livadia Treaty because although negotiated in St. Petersburg, it was ratified by the Czar at Livadia, where Ch'nng How was not received as an Envoy, but as an Ambassador, ad hoc, of China. This telegraphic consent to Ch'nng How's stipulations is a fact. You will now fully understand the policy of the peace party who could not extricate themselves in their negotiations with the Russian representative here; but nevertheless China revoked the Livadia Treaty, and Russia, astounded by this act. found it necessary to gain time; in that she completely succeeded. Five months have elapsed since Ch'ung How was sentenced by the Grand Council, and during that time Russia has condentrated all her disposable men-of-war, with the exception of the unfortunate Kremin, on the Pacific station. Now the Chinese Government gradually consented to the demands of Marquis Tseng, and whilst he is perhaps just beginning to negotiate at St. Petersburgh, at Peking arrangements have been made for the execution of "for the the retrocession of Ili. China agrees to pay to Russia the sum of five million the sixth article of the Livadia Treaty, viz Fronbles," to which, as you have recorded, I made the ramark, of this five million roubles. three and a half millions fall for indemnity to Russian merchants for losses, which they sustained by the revolt and the exactions of the Chinese officials." - Those 31 million roubles or 2,060,000 Haiquan Tiels, China has to, and will. pay immediately, and with it Peking transfers the spene of negotiations to St. Petersburg, where they will be prolonged till next spring, when General Scoboloff II, will have his army completed, and the Russian Admiral commanding on the Pacific Coast will have brought up his fleet to 17 heavily armound vessels, 11 gunboats, 4 transports, and 6 ornisers of the disgust of Prince Ch'un's party, who already rejoiced at those fictitious victories, promises peace in these regions till next spring; nevertheless, some of our Ministers consider the actual situation more menacing than ever, and a gathering of the fleets of several Powers is to take place at Chefoo; what is the menacing attitude of China I am quable to penetrate. I conclude my letter with a discovery I made the other day. I find that Chang Chih-tung was in the first ball of the year '76 Hsiolitai of NGLISH AND CHINE'SE DICTIONARY, WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. An Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Panti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best Volunteer Fleet. This is the actual situation, displays the success of an attempt to make the which together with the denial of a Chinese in. Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications.

To illustrate the yest scope of the work, the following facts are submitted for consideration :-Chalmers' Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English Brechwan; in this capacity the indefatigable ters.
